

Art is about the creative communication of ideas and emotions.
Science establishes truth, revealing objective facts through verifiable experiment.

To mediate between art and science is where I stand in 2008
- a designer - finding pleasure in the freedom of creative thought - discovering and mapping new paths to optimal communication outcomes.

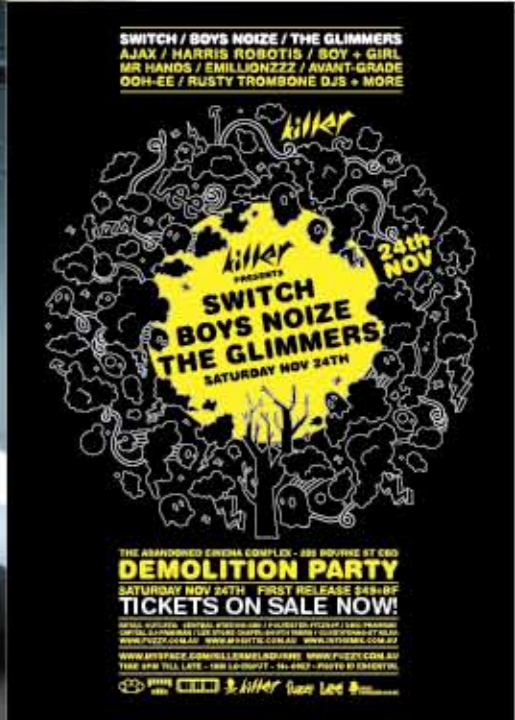

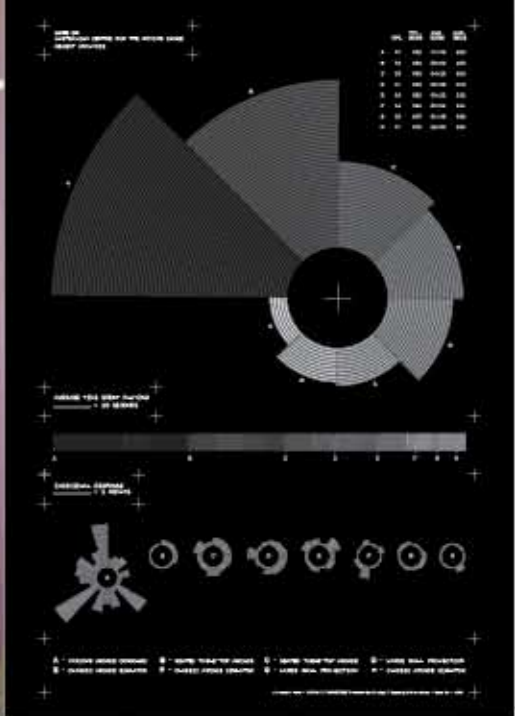

At a time when design has the potential to instigate and guide social change, the opportunity to effect the way people understand new ideas inspires me.

I look forward to a future in design that challenges and extends my creative authorship, across all media.
